TETCIALS ONLY

Approved For Release 2001/03/06 : CIA-RDP82-00457R008300550 INTELLOPAX 9 INFORMATION REPORT CD NO.

CONFID

DATE DISTR. 15 SEP 51

SULLECT

图/ 正

Opinion of Chinese Businessmen on Possible Cathod of Resolving Korean Car fearing they would lose too much face.

NO. OF PAGES !

25X1A

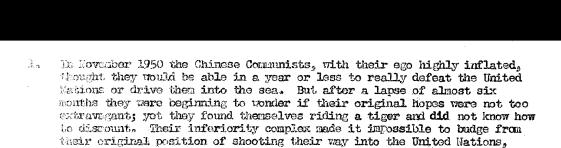

("11) m

NO. OF ENCLS. (LISTED BELOW)

ACC HRED DATE OF 辆车

25X1X

SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

- The consensus among those when source talked to was that a possible Relation was to have the Good Offices Committee of the United Nations work from the side of the North Koreans, because the North Koreans had not repudiated the United Nations, even occasionally having protested to this world organization against alleged uncivilized methods of warfare. The Chinese troops intervened in Korea ostensibly as volunteers and are not original disputants.
- The psychological moment would come when the Chinese forces should fail in the second phase of their spring offensive; the United Nations should then invite the Korth Koreans to United Nations headquarters to show cause why a cease fire should not be ordered pending a recommendation by a Inited Mations committee to compose differences as to how and when to evalve a democratic and unified government.
- This move might bypass the sonsibility and save the face of the Chinese. It is notable that Malik has always pressed the fact that the North Koreans should be heard. There is little other likelihood that the Korean war can be resolved, for the Chinese Communists are so constituted that their mever-say-die motto makes it impossible for them to admit defeat.

